OUR HOLY FATHER'S SEPTEMBER 2018 INTENTION

YOUNG PEOPLE IN AFRICA:

That young people in Africa may have access to education and work in their own countries.

Kolping NY Reflection: This month's papal intention ties in beautifully to our Kolping Goat project. For our Lenten project, many members contributed generously to help buy goats for Kolping families in Kenya. New goat farmers learn about how to care for their small livestock, how to use dung to improve garden yields and they have milk for their own families or to sell.

ST. NICK

Fr. Kolping was born on Dec. 8, 1813. Every year we celebrate his birthday with a nod to Christmas at our St Nikolaus party, the first Sunday of December. (St Nick's feast day is December 6th). We join together at the German Mass at St Joseph's Church on 87th Street, have a bit of a coffee klatsch with the parish community, then head over to our Kolping House on 88th Street for a big luncheon. We've been fortunate to have our members provide musical entertainment. In the old days, the children would perform a Christmas carol for St. Nick and he'd give them a surprise gift. A few years ago, one of our members brought her a capella group and they led us in song. More recently, Don Simons and Larry Kunz have shared their talents. This is also a day to celebrate our long term members. Those who've made the 25 year or 50 year membership milestones are recognized and honored. Contact Joan Dengler at kolpingny@gmail.com to learn more about this wonderful tradition that we want to preserve at the same time as we keep it fresh for our newer members.

Troop 36 Campout

Submitted by Bob Hensing

Troop 36 has just returned from a week long campout at Curtis Read Scout Reservation, just 30 minutes north of the village of Lake George in the six-million-acre Adirondack State Park.

The Scouts enjoyed merit badge workshops ranging from chess to Outdoor Wilderness Survival. On three mornings, they woke at dawn for the Polar Bear Challenge, a jump into the lake at 6am. And they competed in a Triathlon, the Dutch Oven Cooking Challenge, Whitewater Rafting, Golden Arrow Archery Competition, and Pie Eating Contest, just to name a few. We were very busy!

Troop 36 really showed the entire camp their best scouting spirit. On the final day, the Camp Director awarded them with the camp's highest honor, The BOSS award. This award is given to the Troop who shows the Best of Scouting Skills.

If you are interested in joining Troop 36 for another terrific year of adventures, contact our Scoutmaster Staff at: troop36.montrose.ny@gmail.com

KOH Oktoberfest Photos submitted by Charles Ruppmann, Jennifer Scheuermann & Maria Stang

The weather threw us a curve ball as we hosted our annual fundraising event at Kolping on Hudson. The Oktoberfest helps us put a little money aside to pay the electric bill and keep the water on. We had plenty of water on Saturday 8/18 as the rain came down on us a few times during the afternoon.

In spite of that, everyone attending had a lot of fun. The day was beautiful early on, the food was plentiful and delicious, the music was energizing and we had one or two brave souls on the dance floor.

It takes a tremendous amount of work to put on a big event like this. Members pitched in to help guests park their cars. Members donated goodies for the raffle baskets. More members staffed the gate. The food crew was gigantic—from those who peeled a zillion potatoes on Friday to make our homemade potato salad to those who baked delicious desserts to the head chefs in the kitchen all day during the Fest and the team staffing the grill and the food tent. Two more teams ran the indoor and outdoor bars. Smiling faces staffed all the fun booths—kiddy booth, Hammerschlagen, wheel of fortune, hook the ring, the ladies' booth, face painting and ring toss for young and not-so-young. And of course there is the really hard work of planning, setting up all the structures and then cleaning up. We're grateful to all who pitched in. You made the day possible and you keep Kolping on Hudson going.

Stories of Interest

The Lebensborn Legacy submitted by Martin A. Kelly (with supplemental information found online at www.jewishvirtuallibrary.org)

"Lebensborn" translates to "wellspring of life" or "fountain of life." The Lebensborn project was one of the most secret and terrifying Nazi projects. Heinrich Himmler founded the Lebensborn project on December 12, 1935, the same year the Nuremberg Laws outlawed intermarriage with Jews and others who were deemed inferior. For decades, Germany's birthrate was decreasing. Himmler's goal was to reverse the decline and increase the Germanic/Nordic population of Germany to 120 million. Himmler encouraged SS and Wehrmacht officers to have children with Aryan women. He believed Lebensborn children would grow up to lead a Nazi-Aryan nation.

The purpose of this society was to offer to young girls who were deemed "racially pure" the possibility to give birth to a child in secret. The child was then given to the SS organization which took charge in the child's education and adoption. Both mother and father needed to pass a "racial purity" test. Blond hair and blue eyes were preferred, and family lineage had to be traced back at least three generations. Of all the women who applied, only 40 percent passed the racial purity test and were granted admission to the Lebensborn program. The majority of mothers were unmarried, 57.6 percent until 1939, and about 70 percent by 1940.

In the beginning, the Lebensborn were taken to SS nurseries. But in order to create a "super-race," the SS transformed these nurseries into "meeting places" for "racially pure" German women who wanted to meet and have children with SS officers. The children born in the Lebensborn nurseries were then taken by the SS. Lebensborn provided support for expectant mothers by providing a home and the means to have their children in safety and comfort.

The first Lebensborn home was opened in 1936 in Steinhöring, a tiny village not far from Munich. Furnishings for the homes were supplied from the best of the loot from the homes of Jews who had been sent to Dachau. Ultimately, there were 10 Lebensborn homes established in Germany, nine in Norway, two in Austria, and one each in Belgium, Holland, France, Luxembourg and Denmark.

By 1939, the program had not produced the results Himmler had hoped. He issued a direct order to all SS and police to father as many children as possible to compensate for war casualties. The order created controversy. Many Germans felt the acceptance of unwed mothers encouraged immorality. Eventually Himmler backpedaled, but he never condemned illegitimacy outright. Himmler himself had two illegitimate children.

Lebensborn soon expanded to welcome non-German mothers. In a policy formed by Hitler in 1942, German soldiers were encouraged to fraternize with native women, with the understanding that any children they produced would be provided for. Racially fit women, most often the girlfriends or one-night stands of SS officers, were invited to Lebensborn homes to have their child in privacy and safety.

Ultimately, one of the most horrible sides of the Lebensborn policy was the kidnapping of children "racially good" in the eastern occupied countries after 1939. Some of these children were orphans, but it is well documented that many were stolen from their parents' arms. These kidnappings were organized by the SS in order to take children by force who matched the Nazis' racial criteria (blond hair and blue or green eyes). Thousands of children were transferred to the Lebensborn centers in order to be "Germanized." Up to 100,000 children may have been stolen from Poland alone. In these centers, everything was done to force the children to reject and forget their birth parents. As an example, the SS nurses tried to persuade the children that they were deliberately abandoned by their parents. The children who refused the Nazi education were often beaten. Most of them were finally transferred to concentration camps (most of the time to Kalisz in Poland) and exterminated. The others were adopted by SS families.

On May 1, 1945, a day after Hitler's death, American troops marched into Steinhöring. They found 300 children, aged six months to six years. Most of the mothers and staff had fled. The British and Russians also found children at Lebensborn homes near Bremen and Leipzig. The majority of these children were either put up for adoption or sent back to their birth families. Some of the children kidnapped in other countries who were living with families throughout Germany were repatriated to their native countries. Unfortunately, many were too Germanic to fit in.

It is nearly impossible to know how many children were kidnapped in the eastern occupied countries. In 1946, it was estimated that more than 250,000 were kidnapped and sent by force to Germany. Only 25,000 were retrieved after the war and sent back to their families. It is known that several German families refused to give back the children they had received from the Lebensborn centers. In some cases, the children themselves refused to come back to their original family - they were victims of the Nazi propaganda and believed that they were pure Germans. It is also known that thousands of children were not deemed "good enough" to be Germanized were simply exterminated. During the ten years of the program's existence, at least 7,500 children were born in Germany and 10,000 in Norway.
